

Flask is a open source light weight micro web framework written in python designed for getting started with web applications quickly and easily with the ability to scale up to complex application and providing the freedom to developers to choose tools and libraries of their choice.

License

Berkeley Software Distribution
(BSD)

Developed by

Armin Ronacher

Written in

Python

URL

<https://flask.palletsprojects.com>